RURAL ROUTE NO. 3.

Born, lately, to the wife of George McMenahan, a son.

The turkey crop seemed to be rather short this year, though the price has been fair.

Born, Thursday, December 18, 1906, to the wife of R. E. Hawn, about 6 miles east of town, a son.

Jesse Sutton has had a severe spell of pneumonia, but we are glad to note that he is thought to be improving.

Our farmers are not all through gathering corn, and it looks as if they would have bad weather in which to finish.

Kenneth Laws lost a mule last week that died of founder from eating too much unleft hay. It was worth about $150.

Kenneth Laws sold eleven fine hogs to J. T. Burks. They averaged over 200 pounds and the price paid was 5½ cents per pound.

The Vane brothers lost two fine cows lately. One was killed in the barn by other cattle, and the other was supposed to have had hydrocephalus.

Uncle Labor Haws has two pigs that will not be two years old until Washington's birthday, and they will probably net 300 pounds each. Pretty good pigs. R. R. No. 3

A TIME TO SAVE.

Always Well to Make Preparation for Rainy Day.

Soaring bank clearings, heavy realty transactions, bank deposits and healthy business conditions tell a tale of prosperity. This prosperity knows no classes, for it embraces all. The laborer is well paid. The business man finds his affairs on the right side of the ledger. There is a 16% gain in it.

In time of peace prepare for war; in the days of prosperity prepare for adversity. The people of this country are living in the sunshine of financial ease and industrial activity, but the proverbial rainy day is somewhere ahead. This is a time to prepare for it.

The man who has not yet learned to accumulate something, and to add daily to the sum total of his accumulation, is providing future discomfort for himself. The time to accumulate is when money is easily made. The habit of saving once formed, is a habit that will grow with years. Every man who has an earning capacity can save something if he will. To do so means to live inside instead of beyond one's income. Living within his income does not argue that a man is stingy. He is simply thrifty, saving and provident instead of being reckless, wasteful and improvident. The latter is a sin, and the former a virtue.

TRULY A WONDERFUL MEMORY.

Feats of Macaulay That Seem Almost Beyond Belief.

The many stories told of Macaulay's almost portentous memory have been related too often to bear repetition, says a writer. Not a few of them are of seemingly certain authority. William H. Prescott, who met Macaulay about 1850, has told us some interesting things of his memory. I shall mention but one. This was related to Prescott by Henry Hallam, who said that Lord Jeffrey had once told him that having tripped up Macaulay in a quotation from "Paradise Lost," two days after Macaulay came to him and said, "You will not catch me again in the 'Paradise!'" At which Jeffrey opened the volume and took him up in a great many passages at random, in all of which he went on correctly repeating the original. Was it not a miraculous tour d'esprit? Macaulay does not hesitate to say now that he thinks he could restore the first six or seven books of the "Paradise" in case they were lost."

There can be no doubt of the truth of this and many of the other stories told of Macaulay's memory. He was a man of splendid talents. His knowledge of English history was unsurpassed by his contemporaries.

Self-imposed Martyr.

Marvin is a pupil in the Seventy-seventh street school. He is a new pupil. He is also a lazy one, so far as books are concerned, and he finds it an exceedingly irksome duty to get over to the school twice every morning at nine o'clock in order that he may imbibe a modicum of knowledge. Indeed, sometimes he finds the task so difficult that in spite of good intentions he does not make the rite. Last Monday was one of those unfortunate days. When he finally went trudging into the schoolroom half an hour behind time the teacher stopped short the recitation she was conducting and turned her attention to the tardy arrival.

"Marvin," she said, severely, "why were you so late this morning?"

"Oh," said he, blankly, "I've been busy rounding up the other kids so they wouldn't be late to school."—N. Y. Press.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.

Whereas Eliza Bradley and Edward M. Bradley, her husband, by their certain deed of trust, dated the 13th day of September, 1906, any recorded in the Recorder's office of St. Francois county, Missouri, in book of at page 20, do hereby sell and convey to the following described real estate, with all improvements, situate, lying and being in the county of St. Francois and state of Missouri, to wit:

Lot number four (4), block number two (2), in Jones and Johnson's subdivision of part of survey number nine, township 36, range five and six east, as designated on the records in the Recorder's office in St. Francois county, Missouri.

Which said conveyance was made in trust between the parties named in said deed of trust, dated the 13th day of September, 1906, any recorded in the Recorder's office of St. Francois county, Missouri, in book of at page 20, conveyed to the undersigned, trustee, the following described real estate, situate, lying and being in the county of St. Francois and state of Missouri, to wit:

The north half of the northeast quarter of section thirteen (13), township thirty-five (35), range six (6) east, containing eighty acres.

Which said conveyance was made in trust to secure the payment of a certain promissory note in said deed of trust described, and whereas, by the terms of said deed of trust said note is past due and remains unpaid, nevertheless, at the request of the lessor, Edward M.
